Web 2.0 Student Participation Agreement

In April, TECHS students and instructors will be introduced to Web 2.0 tools. The focus of Web 2.0 tools is that the student becomes a creator of content rather than using the web as a consumer of information.

For security reasons, many schools limit the access and use of the tools we will be using in this activity. As your school has approved this activity for TECHS participation, the project becomes not only an opportunity but a responsibility.

This Web 2.0 opportunity will provide you with tools from the Google educational suite of applications. Each student will have their own gmail account, their own web site, word and spreadsheet applications, and more. These tools will be both collaborative and sharing in nature.

Your responsibility is to use the tools for educational purposes only. In the event you use these resources for reasons not related to the course, your privileges will be immediately suspended.

The TECHS instructional team is excited to share the Web 2.0 program with you.

In order to set up your account, please complete and return to your instructor the following Web 2.0 participation agreement:

I _____ wish to participate in the Web 2.0 TECHS lessons. As part of that opportunity, I agree to use the Web 2.0 studenttechs tools for educational use only. I understand that if I misuse these tools for reasons other than prescribed educational activities that my account will be removed from google.studenttechs.org.
